Legal Responses to Mental Health/Mental Disability: Courts, Special Courts and Inter-disciplinary Tribunals

The editors of the Journal of Ethics in Mental Health invite submissions on the intersection between mental health and legal structures (including general/con-specialist courts, specialist courts, and tribunals) for publication in this theme issue.

Potential topics include the Court of Protection, Mental Health Courts and Community Courts; civil and criminal Mental Health Tribunals, guardianship tribunals, and consent and capacity tribunals; and non-specialist Courts dealing or confronted with mental health/mental disability (mental health issues arising in criminal and family law contexts, for example).

The theme issue is co-edited by Professors Ruby Dhand and Margaret Hall (Thompson Rivers University Faculty of Law, Kamloops, BC, Canada) and Professor Paul E. Brodwin, a Professor in the Department of Anthropology at the University of Milwaukee/Adjunct Professor in the Center for Bioethics and Medical Humanities at the Medical College of Wisconsin, USA.

For this theme issue, the usual page limits do not apply. There is no set deadline for submissions.

If you are interested in contributing a paper to the theme issue, and/or if you have any questions regarding the subject matter or process of submission, please contact Margaret Hall at: mahall@tru.ca

Thank you.
